Pakistan is on the Études en France list, so the Campus France procedure is compulsory. Apply for a visa without completing it and the consulate will not process the application at all.

The order it happens

- 1 Create your Études en France account
Through Campus France Pakistan. The campaign for a September intake usually opens the previous October.
- 2 Build your file and pick programmes
Up to seven institutions on the portal.
- 3 Pay the Campus France fee
Around PKR 30,000, non-refundable, separate from the visa fee. Scholarship holders may be exempt.
- 4 Academic interview
At Alliance Française in Islamabad, Lahore or Karachi, booked through the portal. A weak interview is a common refusal reason.
- 5 Receive admission, accept it
Your attestation dates decide the dates on your visa.
- 6 Apply for the VLS-TS visa
With the Campus France approval attached.
- 7 On arrival: validate the VLS-TS
It must be validated online within the first three months or it stops being valid.

Where Pakistani applications usually stall

- Starting in June for a September intake. Four to five months is the working minimum.
- A lump sum deposited shortly before applying. The pattern matters more than the total.
- A statement of purpose that does not match the chosen course.
- A vague interview. Be able to explain why this course, this school, this country.
- €615 is a floor, not a target. Paris costs far more, and consulates know it.
